2019 Call for Papers

The Editorial Team of the Mauritius Institute of Education (MIE) Journal of Education, an international peer-reviewed journal, is planning to publish a themed edition of the journal for 2019 with a collection of papers under the theme 'Education and Digital Technology'. This Call for Papers invites interested authors to make contributions on this theme.

The everyday 'culture' of digital technology provides a vast array of opportunities for communication, collaboration, interaction and innovation. Research studies around digital technology suggest that new technologies can potentially improve teaching and learning by enabling a shift from a traditional to a more learner-centered approach. However, the use of digital technology does not instantly or easily translate into a classroom culture in many educational institutions. Although many teachers may be adept and accomplished 'digital' and 'mobile users' in everyday life, they appear to be severely hindered in harnessing the various opportunities provided by digital technology in their day-to-day teaching.

We are inviting online submission of papers that explore issues involved in teaching and learning with and through digital and mobile technologies. The length of the manuscript should be in the range 5000-6000 words.

To submit a paper, the main/corresponding author should log in at www.manuscriptmanager.net/miejoe, the journal's log-in page. First-time users of the online submission system will need to create a user account. More details about creating a user account and online submission of a manuscript can be accessed from <https://manuscript-manager.elevio.help/en/articles/45>.

Two files are to be uploaded online:

- 1) The full paper/manuscript without any author details
- 2) A title page bearing the full title of the paper and author details

Both files should be in compliance with the instructions and template/style sheet provided to authors on the online submission system under 'Submission guidelines'.

Important Dates

Deadline for online submission of Manuscript and Title Page: 28 February 2019

Deadline for notification of outcome: 30 April 2019
