

MIE Study Days 29th and 30th April 2019

Epistemology, Methodology and Research in Language Studies

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS: PAPER PRESENTATIONS

This event is a platform for researchers to engage in dialogue around epistemological, methodological, and paradigmatic developments in language studies, in light of the multiple reconfigurations brought about by the 21st Century, which point to the need to explore different methodological frameworks that transcend traditional paradigms and move towards more expansive perceptions and understanding of research. The study days provide the opportunity for stimulating reflections, as well as discussion and feedback on ongoing research work. The theme corresponds to the crux of the research process, where the researcher is confronted with the need to navigate and negotiate different tensions between ontology, epistemology and methodology.

We are inviting proposals for oral paper presentations addressing epistemology, methodology, and paradigmatic developments in research in language studies. This includes completed and on-going research, inclusive of doctoral programmes.

Oral presentations will be 20 minutes, inclusive of 5 minutes for questions.

Please email your abstracts/proposals to s.oozeerally@mie.ac.mu.

Deadline for submission of abstracts/proposals is 5th April 2019.

Guest speakers:

Prof. Didier de Robillard, Université de Tours

Prof. Christian Ollivier, Université de La Réunion

Prof. Leketi Makalela, University of the Witwatersrand

Dr. Munene Mwaniki, University of the Witwatersrand